Student reflection

At first, I felt that my plant was going to grow tall and strong. And for a week, it grew rapidly. But, as the days flew by, I realized my plant was growing so slow that I could not measure the centimeters. I grew impatient. Day by day, my Kang Kong grew taller and taller. Then only, I realized that in order to get something that I want or need, I have to be patient and hardworking to get the result of what I want. Somedays, I will forget to water my plant, but I will remember the next day, and water it. As I watched my plant grow, I also learned to be humble. The Kang Kong grows slowly and does not look pretty, but when it becomes an adult, it becomes a very tasty vegetable. I cannot wait to savor my plant that I put in effort to grow!
